

I feel that BPL is a good idea, more so in very rural areas of the united states. With cable and phone companies charging so much for broadband services, I see BPL as a very good competitor that has very good leverage in dropping prices and making the broadband market available and more affordable to more people in a greater area than is now available.